IRON PIPE COMES IN CONTACT WITH 13,000 VOLT WIRE.

Man Holding Pipe Was Severely Burned and Instantly Killed While at Work Digging a Well.

Earl W. Baumgardner, aged 21, of Orrtanna, was instantly killed just before the noon hour Monday at Gardner's Station, when an iron pole, or piece of pipe, in his hands came in contact with a high tension wire of the Cumberland Valley Light and Power Company, carrying 13,000 volts. With his brother-in-law he was engaged in digging a well at the Musselman cannery plant at Gardner's when the accident occurred. Intending to ascertain how much water was in the well, he was using the iron pipe, which was twenty feet long, and had it in the air preparatory to lowering it into the well, when it came in contact with the wire. So severely was he burned that black marks from the nails in his shoes were left on the concrete cover of the well. ## GIGANTIC POWER SYSTEM

FOUR COUNTY TOWNS PART OF NEW SYSTEM.

Stretching from Gettysburg, Furthermost Point West, to Within 30 Miles of New York City.

A means of furnishing cities and towns in this vicinity, including York, Harrisburg, Middletown, York Haven, Hanover, McSherrystown, New Oxford and Littlestown, with an additional supply of electricity for light and power was provided when work was completed on the construction of a steel tower high tension transmission line that connects the system of the Metropolitan Edison Company, of Reading, with that of its associate, the Pennsylvania Edison Company, at Easton.

Completion of the transmission line from Easton to Reading closed the final gap in the Pennsylvania-New Jersey Power System. This super-power system, with four main generating stations, now supplies electricity for light and power in a territory extending from York to York Haven, northwardly to Harrisburg, across Pennsylvania by way of Lebanon, Reading and Easton to Dover, N. J., and beyond this point to within 30 miles of New York City.

The spanning of high tension transmission lines across the final gap in the Pennsylvania-New Jersey Power System makes it possible to shoot power from the station of The New Jersey Power & Light Company, at Dover, through Easton, Reading and Lebanon to all light and power customers in this territory. With the completion of a transmission line from York to Hanover, the power resources of the Pennsylvania-New Jersey System will also be available in the territory of Gettysburg, Hanover, New Oxford, McSherrystown and Littlestown; all of which are at present being served by the Hanover Power Company and the Gettysburg Electric Company, associates of the Metropolitan Edison Company.

The new transmission line from Easton to Reading was built at a cost of about $700,000. It has a carrying capacity of 114,000 volts and is now operating with a 66,000 volt load.

Interchange of power between the various companies which form the Pennsylvania-New Jersey Power System makes possible the greatest efficiency in operation of the several plants. The four main generating stations now providing power for the super power system are located at Dover, N. J., Easton, Reading and York Haven, being operated, respectively, by The New Jersey Power & Light Company, the Pennsylvania Edison Company, the Metropolitan Edison Company and the York Haven Water & Power Company. Power from one or all of these stations is now available in the wide extent of territory covered by the distribution lines of the various companies.

To provide for the future electric light and power needs of this territory two base load stations are now under construction, one at Middletown on the Susquehanna, and the other at Holland on the Delaware River, near Easton. These stations will each have an initial capacity of 30,000 kilowatts and this will be increased, until they reach a maximum of approximately 200,000 kilowatts.

Catoctin Furnace Property Sold.

The historic Catoctin Furnace tract in Carroll county along the Frederick pike, between Emmitsburg and Thurmont, has changed owner as announced last week. The new owners are Lancelot Jacques, Sr., of Smithsburg, Washington county, Md., and Stanley Hauer, Foxville, Carroll county, Md. They acquired it by purchase from Joseph E. Thropp, the present owner. It is a tract of 10,170 acres, embracing a village of 44 houses, an Episcopal church, store and an old mansion built by Thomas Johnson, first governor of Maryland and by Lancelot Jacques, great-grandfather of the present Lancelot Jacques.

The tract is 7 miles long and extends along the Catoctin mountains for about three miles along the Emmitsburg state road. It will be developed by the new owners. The village will be preserved in its present condition, according to an announcement made by the new owners. Most of the houses are large stone buildings of great antiquity. The Johnson mansion is typical of the colonial period. The purchase price was not made known by the new owners.

The order of parade was as follows: The East Berlin Company with its band, led the line of march. Then followed Mt. Rock Centennial Company; McSherrystown, with its band; the Gettysburg Company with the new La France engine, and the Gettysburg Band; the Biglerville firemen and their apparatus in line and a band accompanied their ranks; Yellowhill Fire Company, composed of colored residents of Yellowhill, brought up the rear of the line.

Prizes awarded visiting fire companies for their showing in the parade went to the East Berlin company for having the highest percentage of its membership in line, the prize being $25; Mt. Rock Centennial Company won the award of $15 for the largest representation which was not accompanied by a band.

A SERIES OF ACCIDENTS.

Injured Are Being Cared for at the Annie M. Warner Hospital.

The Annie M. Warner Hospital has received an unusual number of accident cases during these warm July days.

On Thursday of this week Doris Eltz, a five and a half years old daughter of Frank Eltz, of McSherrystown, was accidentally run over by a machine driven by Augustus Miller, of the same place. She received a fracture of the right arm and of the shoulder blade and was cut and bruised when dragged from beneath the car. Mr. Miller carried the child to Dr. Rice, and after first aid treatment she was sent to the Annie M. Warner Hospital. The accident occurred near the Eltz home. Doris was playing with a group of children and was running after an ice wagon. She failed to see the approaching car and darted in the roadway without being aware of her danger. The accident was unavoidable. While the condition of the child is serious hopes are entertained for her recovery.

Joseph W. Cushing, 32 years old, of Baltimore, is slowly recovering from a serious accident. He is an employee of the Schell Transfer Co., of Baltimore, and was asleep on the seat of the truck when the driver lost control from a locking of the steering gear on the Harrisburg road near York Springs. The truck turned turtle and Cushing was crushed about chest and back. The truck when righted was able to proceed on its way. Cushing at the present time is much improved.

A touring car was hit on the Lincoln Highway about two and a half miles from town on Thursday of last week by a truck driven by Harvey Guyer of town. It is said a front wheel of truck caught a rear wheel of car and latter was upset at the side of the road. In the car were Fred B. Cherry, 38 years old, and W. F. Condel, 41 years old, both of Burlington, N. J. Mrs. Condel and two daughters, Mildred and Anna. They were on the way to their homes after a trip to Niagara Falls. Mr. Condel suffered a dislocated collar bone and other injuries, and Mr. Cherry received a number of lacerations. Mrs. Condel and daughters escaped serious injury. The two men were taken to the Annie M. Warner Hospital and are well on their way to recovery.

Two men were hurt on Sunday when the car they were driving left the Lincoln Highway two miles west of Gettysburg, knocked down twenty feet of fence and turned over three times. The occupants of car were Edward Hegener, aged 19 and Walter Hatz, aged 18, both of Lancaster. The men were taken to the Annie M. Warner Hospital. On Monday Dr. Paul R. Byerley, of Lancaster, claimed the machine in which the two men were riding had been stolen from him. Hegener was unconscious when picked up and did not regain consciousness for some time and was badly cut, and on Monday insisted upon his father signing a release to the hospital and they left for Lancaster. Later the state police arrested Hatz, with a broken leg and as soon as he recovers will be taken in charge by the police. Still later Hegener was reported arrested after reaching Lancaster.

ELECTRIC PLANT DESTROYED.

Early Morning Fire at Orrtanna Cleans Up Plant and Equipment.

The destruction of the Orrtanna Light and Power Company early last Saturday morning left a large section of the county without electric light. The plant had furnished light for Orrtanna, Fairfield, Cashtown, McKnightstown, Seven Stars, Mumsburg and Biglerville and many homes in those towns enjoyed electric light.

The fire is supposed to have been caused from the exhaust pipe going out through roof and setting fire to the roof of the building.

The fire was discovered about five o'clock in the morning by Charles Mellinger, night watchman at the plant, and had a headway too much for one man to combat. Before leaving building Mr. Mellinger turned off the power and stopped the generator. The power for plant is generated by a large fuel engine and a thirty foot water wheel and was kept going day and night.

The plant was a total loss. The engine and water wheel being destroyed and the 50 kilowatt generator, also a 25 kilowatt generator in building and not in use, with all the apparatus and equipment about the plant. The loss is estimated at between $8,000 and $20,000.

Mr. Samuel Z. Musselman, of Orrtanna, practically owned the plant. It had been run at first by a fuel engine and only last year had been developed with the water wheel addition and the light system had been extended. The company had been selling power to a number of plants in that section.

Mr. Musselman states the plant will be rebuilt as quickly as it can be done and he expects to make arrangements with the Gettysburg Electric Light Co. for light and power until he can build and resume service.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Weikert and daughter, York street, left on Monday for an automobile trip to Indianapolis, Ind., where they will visit until August 1st.

THE HARRISBURG SHOW.

Governor Pinchot cut the appropriation to the Treasury Department $200,000. Republican State Treasurer Snyder replies with a telling shot as follows:

First—I am not concerned about the appropriation. When it is exhausted this office will get along with these officers for whom money is provided, and the others will get an indefinite leave of absence. The business of the office will go along with the half dozen officers provided for by law.

Second—The statement that this office is not working the hours required by law, as made by Governor Pinchot, is gratuitous and is just as false as most of the statements he has given out since he has been a candidate and since he has been Governor.

Third—As far as this office is concerned, it will be conducted absolute-

Freedom

High on the crown points of the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor, Carl Berquist, acrobatic steeplejack, executed some thrilling stunts last week. Photo shows comparative size of man to the great statue, which holds out the torch of Liberty and Freedom to thousands of old world oppressed as they came to merge in this great melting pot of freemen.

in accordance with the law and not in accordance with any policy formulated by a man who, when he was State Forester, had the greatest absentee record of all the employees and officers of the Commonwealth.

Fourth—The attempt at dictatorship does not in any way disturb anybody who is acquainted with the policy of the professional reformers. In the meantime the State Treasurer will serve the people without telling the press how much better he is doing it than has been done in the past.

P. S.—All new appointees of the Executive Board are getting increased salaries.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

What Advertising Means to You

Every now and then we like to talk to our merchants about advertising and we like to do it in this way because the subject is of equal interest to the public. Frankly the interest of the public, the interest of the merchant and the interest of the local newspaper publisher are inseparably linked.

The public always is best served by buying advertised goods. Goods that are advertised are goods that are more extensively manufactured and consequently cheaper because of increased production. Moreover advertising today is a guarantee of merit. No one need be afraid either of the honesty of the price or the quality of advertised goods. Competition compels honesty even if there should be a wish to avoid it.

There is another benefit, too, in local newspaper advertising. When advertising is thoughtfully employed it means the building of trade for our local merchants and this reacts in increase in real estate values generally. A prosperous business section means added population and increased conveniences. The whole scheme of advertising, merchandising and buying is one of co-operation to mutual advantage.

The merchant always wins favorable reaction when he talks frankly in his advertising to the people and shows them he is dealing honestly with them and making a normal profit.

The man who weeps with week consistently in his advertising shows he holds the public interest at heart is the man who wins. Many merchants lose the substance of public confidence in grasping for the shadow of immediate sales.

Why We Boost the Schools

Newspaper readers, particularly those who have no children, often wonder why newspaper editors take such a keen interest in the building of new schools and the encouragement of education. Sometimes, when the cost of school extension seems particularly heavy, efforts are made to have it appear as if the local editor were unmindful of the public interest in forever boosting for new avenues of learning. But let us lift the professional curtain so that you may see there is usually helpful thought behind the writing of an editorial.

The growth of population places succeeding generations at a disadvantage. Original stores of natural wealth are being depleted. They must be constantly replenished.

Carefree folks say that by the time exhaustion is in sight we will have taken care of the situation some other way: that when a new fuel is found, coal and mining won't be necessary. And there exactly is the point. The great need of the hour is for invention, for scientific research, for discovery, for ingenuity, for the development of all those characteristics that can find root only in the trained and educated mind.

Unless we invent and discover new methods of production and distribution in excess of consumption and destruction, life will soon become unbearable. Prices will rise to a point where human existence will be a torment.

That is why we always boost the schools, even when they are hard to pay for.

What May Happen to Our Railroads.

At a hearing in May before the Interstate Commerce Commission, Agnew T. Dice president of the Reading System, including the Harrisburg and Gettysburg Railway, presented a statement against the consolidation of the railway properties of the United States into a limited number of systems. This statement has recently been put in print and a copy has reached our desk. The Philadelphia Inquirer speaking editorially of this statement said:

President Dice's protest against the absorption of the Reading Company by the Baltimore and Ohio will have much weight with those who know Mr. Dice and what he represents. It is only a few years since a band of zealots insisted that our country's safety lay in tearing apart large railroad systems. Now another party of equally zealous men are demanding that all the 265,000 miles of railroad in the United States be welded into a few great companies.

The tearing asunder was to be done by law. The amalgamation is to be effected with a club. Both operations are loaded with dynamite.

In nearly all cases during the century in which railroads have grown in the United States, they have gone where necessity called. They were built to give certain localities the facilities needed.

To say now that every city, great or small, depends upon its railroad connection for existence is merely stating a self-evident truth. It is also true that any favoritism of one over another is the matter of transportation would instantly register in the business and trade of the cities affected.

Hence to smash existing companies by forcing them to become a part of another is a highly delicate matter not only for the railroads, but for the population they serve.

To saddle forcibly bankrupt concerns upon prosperous companies which have been built up by years of effort would be grossly unfair to the owners of the company compelled to assume such a liability. On the other hand, to sandbag a gilt-edge property into the lap of one not so fortunately equipped would be just as unfair to its owners.

So this question of bigger railroad systems is serious all around. It cannot be settled with gunman tactics. It dare not be made an adjunct of political ambitions nor financial speculation.

Bigger and fewer transportation systems may be necessary, but the country will tolerate no blackjack methods. That stands for the railroad and their owners, and it also stands for the much greater factor of the people who can only prosper with adequate transportation.

New Law for Beekeepers.

Secretary Frank P. Willis has notified all Pennsylvania beekeepers that the section of 1921 Bee Law, requiring the use of movable frames in bee hives, because effective on July 1 and will be rigidly enforced by the Department of Agriculture.

The department is ready to proceed with the examination of apiaries at once. Additional assistance has been procured so that the statewide inspection, under the direction of Chief Apiarist Charles N. Greene, may be conducted thoroughly and completed as speedily as possible.

In the two years that have passed since the bee law was enacted, practically every beekeeper who observes up-to-date practices in his business has made the movable frame improvement which is now required by law.

There are between twelve and thirteen thousand bee owners in Pennsylvania. Approximately ten per cent of this number are operating on a commercial scale.

It was principally through the efforts of this commercial group that the law putting the ban on dangerous makeshift receptacles for housing colonies was placed upon the statute books of the State after careful study of the most serious bee disease disclosed the part played by the old-style equipment in harboring and transmitting disease.

IRON SPRINGS.

Rain and hail fell in torrents between Virginia Mills and Maria Furnace Station on the afternoon of July 5. Hail as large as marbles fell at Fairfield Station and heaps of hail lay on the ground on the morning of July 5 around places near the station. Railroad ties were washed from the station school house along the railroad for one-fourth of a mile at least. The hail cut the corn on James Musselman's farm and on the farm of Lance McClellan. Over half a hundred young chickens were drowned by Ralph Musselman during the heavy rain. Mr. Keefeaver lost 60 peeps and Jacob Althoff lost 26 or more.

Francis Flemming and Elmer Bennett returned to Windy Gap, Monroe county, Pa., on Thursday to resume their work on the state highway.

BACKACHE IS DISCOURAGING.

But Not So Bad if You Know How to Reach the Cause.

Nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you awaken, pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to work or to rest. Backache often indicates bad kidneys. Gettysburg people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbors.

Mrs. Chas. Kappes, 229 N. St. Gettysburg, says: "I was quite badly with kidney trouble. There was a heavy pain in the small of my back that never let up during the day. In the morning when I got up I felt stiff and sore and this made it hard for me to get around. Dizziness came on very often and tiny spots blurred my sight. My kidneys were weak and as I had known of Doan's Kidney Pills for a long time, I decided to try them. I got some from the People's Drug Store, and they rid me of the backaches and did away with the other signs of kidney trouble."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Kappes had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Richard Lloyd Jones Says

CULTIVATION
CULTIVATES YOU

Man benefits more by the process of labor than by the products of labor. Where Nature gives most lavishly man does least for himself and there we find Humanity at its lowest ebb.

The less man cultivates the less he is cultivated. Nature often kills by kindness. It is from the stern, rigorous and naturally unfriendly stretches that we get our hardest and best Humanity.

The arid waste forces the farmer to alertness and energy.

One must be more than farmer to farm a desert. He must be engineer; he must bring water from distant mountain basins and release it on the parched ground. He must master gates and sluices to make the reluctant land yield its inherent richness.

Success comes to him who is bigger than his job. The idle are penalized by weakness. The workers are rewarded with power. For each atom of strength expended more energy is given.

Resistance produces friction and friction gives the dynamo its driving power. Too much smoothness or lubrication may result in a loss of force.

Your automobile engine is never so likely to "go dead" as when you give it no work to do—let it idle.

Necessity is the mother of invention, because need forces action, want compels man to do.

Food too easily found always muzzles the dog's mind and sabbies muscle. It takes true greatness of soul to weather too easy a life. We often hear of a man who can master adversity, but who becomes as puffy under the consoling influence of affluence.

To be forced to fight for food quickens the wit. The smartest dog is not the protected lap pet, but the dog whose wit is whetted by duty to perform.

Slothfulness and waste are always found where Nature is kindest, the soil richest, and competition lacking.

Cultivation is a kindly habit. It is the expression of a mother instinct; the passion for power to create, develop and build. It is the wish to nurture the seeds of good, to bring them the moisture of gentle rain, the warmth of the sun, the protection from being crowded out by the stronger things which are not of service to the better end.

We cultivate that the best possible may be brought forth. And in the beautiful economy of life the benefit is reciprocal.

It is our struggle against the elements that lifts our civilization.

Cultivate anything and you cultivate yourself. Make anything grow and you make yourself grow. Build anything and you build yourself. The man who does the biggest work is always recorded in history as the biggest man.

Cultivation is the process of civilization. Perfection is the product of work.

Insect Pest Causing Greatest Damage

"Some little bug will get you some day."

Right now the farmers of Pennsylvania are experiencing one of the worst general attacks by injurious insect pests that they have ever been forced to contend with. Of the 100,000 different kinds of insect pests known in the state, there are a dozen or more that are eating their way towards millions of dollars in fruit and farm crop losses. The attack is general throughout the state, except for some few localized spots where damage control is possible in some instances where the usual methods advocated by the State College extension service are followed. The situation is summed up by Prof. H. E. Hodgkiss, extension insect specialist at State College:

Aphids have already stung about one-third of the apple crop in the fruit sections. Cabbage maggots have done quite a lot of damage to early cabbage plants and in seed beds are now working on late cabbage plants. The seed corn maggot has been found in Green county. The corn-root web-worm is the worst pest of corn this year and is found generally throughout the state. Late cultivating and poison bran mash are advised for control.

The Colorado potato beetle is worse this year than in the past five. Flea beetles, especially the "pale striped flea beetle," are also causing damage to potatoes, and it is about time for aphids and leaf hoppers to show up on potatoes. They are expected to be bad in sections this year, and it is advisable to watch for them. Plants should be sprayed, even if only a few appear, using nicotine in the Bordeaux for the lice. Asparagus beetles are also proving to be very damaging and should be attacked with arsenate of lead, either as a spray or a dust.

The codling moth is coming late this year and the second brood may be as late as the first ten days of August. Bud moths and leaf rollers were bad last fall and give indications that they will cause great damage this fall. Lead arsenate is advised as a control measure. In the southern counties this should be applied about the middle of September.

Hessian fly has already made itself apparent and much wheat is down as a result. Late planting in the fall is the prime factor in the control of this pest.

Locusts have been damaging in the central Pennsylvania counties, and peach borers will be active during the summer. "P. D. B." applied between September 10 and October 15 routes the borers.

The angoumois grain moth is not the least of the pests that Pennsylvania farmers are bothered with, and grain fumigation demonstrations by State College specialists will start July 18. Early threshing and fumigation with carbon bisulfide is advocated. There are scores of other well known insect pests, but there are the most active and damaging in the state at this time.

The food value of potatoes that have been sprayed during the growing season with the usual copper solution, has been found to be higher than that of potatoes that were not sprayed. The starch and nitrogen content of tubers treated with Bordeaux is increased, according to recent bulletin on the subject from the U. S. Department of Agriculture and which has come to the attention of County Agent Underwood.

The spray not only has the effect of controlling the diseases for which it is applied, but the yield is practically doubled and the keeping quality of the tuber is increased. The improved quality was noted especially in Pennsylvania last season, the sprayed potatoes coming through the dry spell in fine shape. The quality for table use was considered the best ever raised in Pennsylvania.

This year there are over 25,000 acres of potatoes being sprayed in Pennsylvania. The acreage in Adams county is estimated at 50. Scores of growers will produce over 300 bushels to the acre as against not much more than 100 bushels for the state average. Five years ago when State College extension specialists and county agents began to preach "potato mentality," there were less than a dozen spraying machines in the entire state. To-day there are upwards of 3000 machines and as many up-to-date potato farmers out to decrease production costs.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture bulletin, results obtained in seven states including Pennsylvania, showed an average of 2,501 pounds of solids of tubers per acre for the non-copper sprayed plants, and 3,430 pounds of solids for the ## Burning Pennsylvania Homes.

In view of the persistent shortage of housing facilities in Pennsylvania as in every other state, it is not a little alarming to learn from figures made public to-day by The National Board of Fire Underwriters, through its Actuarial Bureau, that Pennsylvania burned, during the five-year period of 1917-1921, dwelling house property valued at $13,950,715. This was only a portion of the total fire destruction in Pennsylvania; it represents a per capita dwelling fire loss for the state of $1.59. At $10,000 each, 1,395 comfortable homes could have been constructed with the money thus thrown away, and the scarcity of suitable housing accommodations in Pennsylvania materially relieved.

It appears further that the total loss in dwellings for the entire country, during this term, exceeded a quarter-billion dollars, standing at $21,453,878. Chief among the originating causes cited by the Board as responsible for this unexampled destruction were "Defective Chimneys and Flues," "Sparks on Roofs" (usually wooden shingle), "Stoves, Furnaces, Boilers and their Pipes," "Electricity" (misused), and "Match-Smoking."

"Significantly enough," said W. E. Mallalieu, general manager of the National Board, in commenting upon the losses, "four of these five causes long since were pronounced by fire prevention engineers to be 'Strictly Preventable,' for sheer carelessness in some form or, of course, at the bottom of an overwhelming majority of all blazes in dwellings as in every other type of structure."

"More appalling by far than even the enormous financial loss, however, is the record of the thousands of fatalities involved—an utterly purposeless waste of life from which Pennsylvania, unfortunately, was not by any means free. Statistics are not available to show what proportion of the 15,000 deaths from fire—which in this country is the average yearly toll—occurred in residences, but a fair estimate would place it well above 50 per cent. That dwelling house fires are so frequently attended by loss of life—the victims usually being women and children—points clearly to the fact that fire prevention rightly begins at home."

"It cannot begin too soon. Fires are occurring in American homes at the rate of 359 in each twenty-four hour period—a fresh outbreak every four minutes. If, as so often has been stated, the home is the ultimate bulwark of American institutions, then there would seem to be a grave national menace in this continuous assault by fire. Yet it is a danger that need not be suffered. It can be checked by the exercise of carefulness, individual and public, for an average of three out of every four fires result from negligent habits or from ignorance of hazardous conditions."

Farewell Service.

Rev. J. B. Shanahan, rector of the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church of New Oxford for the past six years, sails on Saturday, July 14, for his home place in Ireland, Droghda, Lestrowd, Kerry county, where he will live in retirement. On Monday evening 250 of his parishioners gave him a farewell service.

The service opened with a song by Miss Lucy Brashers entitled "Just A Little Bit of Heaven." Following her Rev. J. McGuire, assistant rector of the congregation, delivered the opening address. A chorus composed of the Misses Anna and Rosella Staub, Ellen Miller, Lucy Brashers and Maurice Sterner, J. R. and Earl Weaver, James Robinson and Leo Staub then sang "Ireland Must Be Heaven." Curtis Miller, piano and Raymonn Smith, violin, rendered a well received duet after which Rev. Paul Weaver presented a purse to the venerable pastor containing a substantial sum of money in behalf of the congregation. The meeting closed with a farewell address by Rev. Shanahan, who touched upon his work and departure very feelingly, the rendition of "On The River Shannon" by the chorus, the bestowal of the pastor's blessing upon all present and the singing of "Farewell to You" by the chorus.

On the flower and plant covered platform, draped with the American and Irish flags and the colors of green, white and gold were a group of clerical friends of the pastor, Rev. Burke, Rev. Smyth and Rev. Yeager, of York; Rev. O'Callaghan, Littlestown; Rev. Brendon and Rev. Aeben, Paradise; Rev. Murphy, of Harrisburg; Rev. Scanlon, Bonneauville; Rev. Dr. Deudter, McSherrystown; Rev. Boyle, Shamokin; Rev. Stock, Gettysburg; Rev. Howard, Very Rev. Huber and Rev. Joyce, of Hanover, and Rev. McGuire, of New Oxford.

Tines of Fork in Abdomen.

Clarence Garrett, aged about 18 years, who lives near Scheivert's school house, employed on the farm of Charles Little, near Silver Oak Union township, met with a painful and serious accident on Monday evening. While feeding cattle at the farm he fell on a fork, the tines inflicting a dangerous wound in his abdomen. A physician was called and rendered preliminary aid. He was attended later by the family physician, and removed to the York Hospital on Tuesday for further treatment.
